Finding Emerging Artists in Park City

By Laura Jackson

There's a special sort of excitement that comes in capturing even a glimpse of the passion artists experience while creating their art. With emerging artists, that zeal is even more intense—it's a burning new fire at the launch of their art careers. Here in Park City, where inspirations are infinite, you can find a great variety of emerging artists sharing their enthusiasm for life in fascinating new ways.

Up Close and Personal

"Three Bears" by Ron Russon

deep-rooted connection to the land and wildlife he loves. Each expressive painting comes to life in captivating contrasts of abstract color and shape. He has found an interesting method of pairing thin, sometimes transparent washes of paint next to bold, opaque sections giving his paintings a vibrant texture and energy.

Gallery MAR, Ron Russon

Maren Mullin, owner of Gallery MAR believes, "There's a magic in finding personal connections with a piece of art that's hard to describe without experiencing it." Sometimes something inside just clicks and you know this will be an artist to watch for years to come.

Surrounded by the majestic Wasatch Mountains and acres and acres of farmland is where Ron Russon grew to love and respect the beauty and power of nature. He describes himself, "I am a farmer who paints."

Although his contemporary style of portraying rural life is definitely not traditional, it reflects a
